Upcoming Events/Opportunities

:: Webinar: Tips for Writing in Academic Publications

July 27 2020 9am-Noon | July 28 2020 10-11:30am

Are you interested in learning how to enhance your scholarly writing to tell your research story? Would you like to learn some strategies for increasing your clarity, organization and persuasiveness? Join us on July 27th (9am to 12pm) and July 28th (10am to 11:30am) for a workshop dedicated to Tips for Improving Writing for Academic Publications. Details here.

:: Webinar: Equity, Diversity and Inclusion in Research

July 30 2020 10am-Noon EDT

For students and researchers interested in learning how to foster an inclusive research environment, Western's BrainsCAN is hosting an EDI in Research webinar. They will address equity, diversity, and inclusion requirements for grants, for grants, and how to apply these principles in the lab and in your work. This event is open to all #WesternU researchers. Registration and details here.

:: Grad Mentors Needed

The Academic Success Program (ASP) seeks grad students to facilitate Study Hall for student athletes. Grad mentors would have 3 hours in Study Hall each week and be connected with varsity teams to before or after practice to see how things are going academically and share info on campus resources. Grad mentors will support our undergraduate learning peers and SAMP mentors that are also part of the ASP team. This volunteer role is on Western's Co-Curricular Record. Please email melissa.ostrowski@uwo.ca for details.

:: Thrive Online Blog Submissions

Western Student Experience has launched a new website called Thrive Online where students are welcome to share their stories in their own words. You can write about your research, your experience as a graduate student, or something else of interest related to your time at Western. It is important to have the graduate student voice represented. Learn More Here.
